She claimed her Indian blood through her father, Thomas Mantooth. My great-grandfather, Thomas Mantooth, Sr., I have always heard was a full-blood Cherokee. I do not remember where he lived. I do not remember when either my grandfather or my great-grandfather died. They probably died before I was born. I never lived the (sic) Indians. We have always been regarded as white people. We have never received any money as Indians. I heard when I was small, that I had Indian blood. My father and mother both spoke of it. They said that they were Eastern Cherokees. The statements in my application as to the time of the death of my grandfather and great grandfather I got from my parents. I never heard of either of them being enrolled as Cherokees."
